

JAVIER ZAMORA

Disappeared

as in you're dragged to the darkest alleyway where dirt becomes beach for hours you can't find a place to stand without noticing the stars' sickness there's a voice where forceps flay you can't recall your hair memorizing ditches the voice is built like invasion and says how did you raze the lines in the sand cerote your face sizzles as a wave the weight of bodies dressed in the uniform of a question blue crabs clamp your voice to night and your hands are no longer yours released all you can say is there's not enough sand where blue crabs eat sleep out of me

see ARENA Roberto D'Aubuisson Escuadrón de la Muerte Río Sumpul El Mozote Berlin Usulután El Playón La Puerta del Diablo etc

Uniform

suppose a private likes your sister she says no so he tells his sergeant she's a guerrillera sergeant goes to his staff sergeant says she's a bonafide guerrillera a mera mera now your sister the 10th grader is the leader of the regional guerrilla that's his promotion that means your family that's how you might survive and swear to take as many uniformed possible don't repeat this

Think Paramilitares Escuadrón de la Muerte Las Fuerzas Armadas La Guardia Civil Batallón Atlacatl Escuela de las Américas (also known as: Fort Benning or Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation) Batallón Díaz Arce Ronald Reagan Bush Sr Alliance for Progress US AID CIA Jimmy Carter the fourteen families (ie: Cristiani, D'Aubuisson, Duarte, Flores, Handal, Saca, Sol, etc.)